

sections of the Act. Government has introduced a Cable TV Networks (Regulation) Amendment Bill in the current session of Parliament with a view to remove, amongst others, these lacuna.

Further, the TV channels uplinking their programmes from India are bound through appropriate licensing conditions, to abide by the programme and advertisement codes as applicable to Doordarshan. However, the Government is not in a position to impose such conditions or obligations on the TV channels uplinking their programmes from outside the country, as they are not bound to seek permission or approval for downlinking. This situation has got further accentuated as these channels were earlier not permitted to uplink their programmes from India. In order to remove this anomaly, the Government has liberalized its uplinking policy recently enabling these channels to uplink their programmes from India, so as to bring them within the ambit of our rules and regulations particularly, the ones relating to the compliance with our programme and advertisement codes.

Government is also contemplating to bring a comprehensive legislation with a view, amongst others, to provide for regulation of broadcasting services including foreign satellite TV channels.
